Few people realize the disastrous effect of the unprecedented increase in the people of the tenements. Consider that the bread-winner can earn only $5 sands of families dependent upon the feeble exertions of a weak woman, because of the illness or death of the natural bread-winner, and that in such eases the earnings are half of $5 or $5 a week, it is easy to see that these in This state of affairs existed, Mr. Haven

Afr. Wortz, of 55 Essex street, told a similar story. She said she knew one woman with a husband, who had been sick since February and two tiny children, who had had no lish for a week, covering him in bed witte quilts, bits of carried and articles of clothing, as she had only an oil store and couldn't afford the oil because it is so dear.

cause of the liness or death of the natural bread-winner, and that in such cases the earnings are half of $5 or $6 a week, it is easy to see that these insomes will not warrant expenses for comforts or even ordinary conveniences. Oil stoves are cheaper than cooking ranges. When oil was two cents a quart, as it was up to six months ago, it made a cheaper fuel for cooking purposes and heating than coal or gas. Now kerosene is three times as expensive and more, and the hardship is keenly felt by the poor.

The small grocers have always dealt in oil without profit, and usually at a loss. They could not lose much in handling oil at a cents a gallon, but the investment multiplied by three or four increases the loss proportionately, and so the small dealers complain, too, that they should be compelled to contribute to the greed of the monopoly that feeds upon man's necessities.

Mir. Engel keeps a little grocery store at 231 Broome street, Her case is a sample one. Said she to an "Evening World" reporter:

"I lose money on every drop of kerosene I sell. When I had to pay 6 cents and I soid it at 10 cents as gallon. To-day I am selling oil that I paid it cents for at 12 cents, or 3 cents a quart, and my poor customers think I am robelled at the content of the conten
